MASTIFS

Mastery of the breed, quickly, time, seems to fly and before you know it, years have gone by.

Time may be a measured quantity, but for some, twenty-four hours is a longer period of time than for others. There are those who seem to put so much into a day, so much into a year and if you will, so much into a lifetime, so that before you know it, it's over.

The rearing of a giant breed like the Mastiff, all in a very special animal to us, may be one of the most challenging, yet rewarding experiences of life. It is important to understand the Mastiff's breed

We take a look at the different breeds of Mastiffs, from the giant to the small, and the characteristics that distinguish them. We also discuss the responsibilities of owning a Mastiff and the importance of proper care and training.

Mail Bag: April issue; what to do with dog poop.

Got a pile of letters on the subject, all of them from people who have a dog poop issue at some point. After all, it is one of the most common issues these days. Let's talk about it.

What should you do with dog poop? Here are a few options:

1. Bag it and dispose of it properly. This is the most common and easy solution. Make sure to use a biodegradable bag, and always dispose of it in a designated area.
2. Compost it. If you have a composting system, this is an excellent way to recycle the waste and reduce the odor.
3. Spread it as fertilizer. If you have a garden or a farm, spreading the poop as a natural fertilizer can be a great way to improve your soil quality.

In conclusion, taking care of dog poop is an important part of being a responsible dog owner. By following these tips, you can help keep your neighborhood clean and healthy.
